move, but there is a major need for renovation to the tune of several million dollars. We are proceeding quite cautiously here. Once again, the State Historical Society is a very valuable Nebraska treasure. There's lots of obligations with that, keeping historical facts of the history of Nebraska; it's used as a library research...a research source, but the renovation and so forth is quite costly. Moving out and moving in alone is quite costly, so we are looking for some options. This money is in that for seeking those options. I think there's going to be some further publicity on this. I would urge you to watch the papers, if you will, to see the story of this historic...historic agency. It's...I've forgotten when it was established, but it was way back in the 1800s. And I think that we feel that it's very valuable but, once again, we need to see a plan for what is best suited for the storage of the archives and also the business office and so there's money in here for two...for two...two approaches and we would expect to look at that more closely next year. The other one, water system for the Lincoln Regional Center, that is absolutely necessary to hook on to the Lincoln Water System. They've had their own wells and they are inadequate. And finally at the bottom is the Capitol renovation, another million dollars each year for various things around this...this building; not exactly determined which and where those things will go, but it's a continued upgrade and maintenance of this building. It's anticipated that it may be needed several years hence and, as you know, we're putting a lot of money into this at this point but, once again, this is not only a Nebraska treasure. I think it's...could be stated it's a national and a world treasure. We intend to maintain it. This money would not necessarily be allocated to the exterior but could be some necessary renovations or repairs and improvements on the interior. And so that is our new construction budget. If you can look at the numbers there, it's $19 million and $17 million, for reaffirmation, in this next current year...two years; for new construction $17 million and $15 million. Fairly modest as construction projects go. There's more detail here on page 62, 63, and 64, if you're interested in some of the areas that are important. Some of these the Governor has done. The York facility the Governor did. NETV the Governor did not, although...
